The nearly looking man who thumps his chest and says he's sound as a dollar, does not take into consideration the catarrh which bothers him occasionally.

Oh! everybody has more or less catarrh that's nothing he says. But he is mistaken. What begins in catarrh may end in consumption. It is a foul disease at its best and a fatal disease at its worst when it involves the lung tissues. For catarrh and for the cases of the throat and lungs in general the standard medicine is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is recommended by physicians who have tested its efficacy and wondered at its cures. It not only destroys the disease, but it purifies the blood and strengthens the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition.

"For twelve years I was a sufferer from catarrh and was treated by one of the best physicians in the state of North Carolina who said the trouble had reached my lungs," writes Mr. J. M. Patten, of Cloto, Transylvania Co. "I grew worse every day until I read Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, cured me and to-day I am well and hearty and I will say further that my former physician, Dr. W. M. Lyday, recommends Dr. Pierce's medicine to me and to others. I am sure your medicines will cure any case of catarrh that exists. I recommend them to all."

COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE

Published Every Day in the Year

Sixty Cents a Month — Seven Dollars a Year

YESTERDAY'S GAZETTE.

THOSE of our readers who took the pains to compare yesterday's Gazette with any other issue printed in the state must have been struck by the great superiority of the Gazette in every possible way.

Mechanically it was infinitely superior.

True, it did not have red or yellow or blue ink pictures or pages, but it was more artistic and less vulgar on that account and more in keeping with the highest standard of metropolitan newspapers published in the large eastern cities.

The issue on which the Gazette was printed yesterday is of a grade and quality never equalled by any Colorado newspaper.

In a newspaper literary way there really was no ground for comparison, for the splendid special dispatches and contributions in the Gazette had no counterpart in any other Sunday paper.

The Gazette next Sunday will, if possible, be superior to the one of yesterday.

"Phonolyte" will have an immensely entertaining article on the "Dark Horse" in the senatorial race.

Fitz-Mac will contribute an article on the great Portland mine and many other special writers will have letters and essays on timely topics.

The supplement to next Sunday's Gazette will be the magnificent colored portrait of President McKinley published by the Judge company of New York city, the exclusive rights of which were purchased for Colorado by the Gazette at considerable expense.

No person in Colorado who wishes a first-class five newspapers and the best in the state can afford to be without the Gazette.

THE COTTAGE CONTEST.

THE contest for the summer cottage which is to be given away by the Gazette in the course of the next three months has already developed some very novel features.

That the contest will be a success is already certain, as was from the moment that the Gazette announced that it would undertake this enterprise, and the amount of interest already awakened in it is sufficient to guarantee a good lively contest until the ballot boxes are closed.

One of the unusual features of this contest is that it is an encourager of matrimony.

Now matrimony is a good thing.

A great many people who are married live of this opinion, and so are many who are not. And the Gazette, when it always sometimes for the public welfare, be that it can do no greater service to this community than by promoting a plan which is intended to encourage young people who are about to commit matrimony or to make smooth the path of those who have recently undertaken this most important step. For it will be observed that by the terms of the contest the prize will be awarded to some couple whose united years do not exceed sixty and the date of whose marriage is between August 31st, 1899 and August 31st, 1900.

A second reason which has influenced the Gazette in undertaking this contest at the present time is the advantage of calling attention to the peculiar advantages possessed by Colorado Springs and its immediate vicinity as a place of summer residence. There ought to be of little cottages erected very much like the one which the Gazette is going to give to the young married couple. And there ought to be thousands of such young married couples who would find themselves better off all their lives if they would spend their honeymoon in some one of these cottages. Having encouraged its readers to get married, the Gazette wishes to indicate to them the proper path of subsequent procedure.

A special feature of this contest is the keen faith and enterprise of some Colorado Springs business men who have encouraged the Gazette to offer such a prize. So far as we know the offer is unprecedented on the part of a western newspaper and has never been surpassed by even the largest metropolitan dailies. But Colorado Springs enjoys boasting the record and the present contest is among other things a striking example of the enterprise and liberality that is making this city known all over the land and is sending it forward along the road of prosperity with tremendous strides.

With our present conditions and prospects, whatever draws attention to us helps us, and the Gazette summer cottage contest will be found to do good to the city in a way not reached by some other more pretentious schemes.

REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES UNCHANGED.

THE suggestion to invite to the Philadelphia national convention as guests, the surviving delegates of the first Republican national convention, held in the same city in 1856, is a very good one.

The presence of these veterans would not come to a close contact to them [illegible] visible proof of the fallacy of the statement that the Republican party has outgrown its original principles and has changed its original policies.

What the party was established to maintain was a government without privileged classes, a nation in which every man's rights are respected and maintained.

The institution of slavery was a violation of this sacred principle and it was overthrown.

It is pledged to the maintenance of equal rights for all under the law.

In its search for votes and its greed for power the Democratic party is ready to make all kinds of specious promises of special privileges and exemptions of all kinds. Most of these pledges it has no intention of fulfilling, but each one of them is in violation of the main principle of our government which the Republican party has set itself to defend.

In the southern states where Democracy is established there is a favored class and the persons who are in that class have relations with the government different from those which it sustains to those outside the ring.

In the larger cities of the country, like New York and [illegible] Democracy has come to mean not service to the people, but by personal popularity or respect of one's fellow citizens, not by an ability to do what is best for the state or the city, but by an ability to secure for some reason the endorsement of a man who has no official position who is subject to no legal restraint and who is accountable in no way to the public for the enormous power which he exercises.

In its practice as well as in its theory Democracy means the running of the government for the benefit of the few. Its promise is "Vote for us and we will run things for your benefit, but the other fellows look out for themselves." Its fulfillment is to run things for its own benefit and the voters may be trusted to be deceived again next time.

MORE MILLIONS FOR COLLEGES.

TWO millionaires of St. Louis, Robert S. Brookings and Samuel S. Cupples have added their names to a rapidly lengthening American roll of honor by gifts aggregating $1,000,000 to Washington university of St. Louis.

Besides securing for themselves a permanent recognition from their fellow men these millionaires have the satisfaction of knowing that their money has been used in one of the most certain ways for doing good for all future time.

Colorado has not yet reached the point where her colleges are being endowed with millions at a gift, but that time will surely come and at no very distant future, and in the mean time such institutions as Colorado college are laying the foundations upon which larger things will be built.

Fifty years from now gifts of a million dollars to Colorado college will be as common as those of ten thousand dollars are now.

THE STRIKERS AND THE MOB.

WHILE the strikers in St. Louis have maintained a very creditable attitude of lawfulness and moderation, there has been more than a usual amount of outbreaks on the part of the mob that in large cities always takes advantage of strike troubles in order to vent its spite against [illegible] and [illegible] at all times.

But the fact that the mob usually sympathizes with the strikers is not a good reason why they should be held accountable for its violence. The intelligent labor leaders, and fortunately most of them are intelligent know perfectly well that they have no worse enemy than the rioters who are wholly beyond their control, for many a good cause has been lost through the violence and lawlessness of the mob.

But just as the anti-social elements seize upon the occasion of a strike in order to make an attack upon property and society in general so the state should recognize the necessity of defending its own rights at such times. The public is always the greatest sufferer and the greatest loser, no matter what may be the outcome or who may be declared the winner.

When a [illegible] is unable to adjust its business relations with its employes in such a way as to carry on the functions for which it was organized and for which the state gave its charter, it is time for the state to intervene to protect the interests of the public.

The interference of the mob at such times is after all an evidence of a general feeling that the public has a right to an interest in the dispute, but this interest should be made manifest in some other way. The lawlessness of the mob may destroy property, and the injunction of the judge supported by police or state militia may preserve it, but what is wanted is something that will keep the cars running and will prevent delay of the mails and injury to business and general damage to the public interests. The state only can give calls, and this the citizens have a right to demand of the state.

THE CHICAGO RIVER.

WHEN Chicago people first made up their minds that it would be a good thing for them to have a river, the first thing in order was to get rid of what they had.

What it was has given rise to considerable debate, but it is sufficient to remark, in passing, that to call it a river might be flattery but was certainly far from the truth. While that thing, whatever it was, was in the neighborhood it was obviously impossible for Chicago to have a river, and it was not until the whole thing had been sent to St. Louis, via the drainage canal, that the unanimous Chicago felt themselves free to get what they wanted.

Now, however, they propose to have a river as is a [illegible] Two hundred feet wide and thirty feet deep has been the [illegible] risen in the Chicago mind as the proper dimensions for a stream of this sort, and with a pardonable pride it is announced that the enterprise will cost [illegible]

The advantages of a real river will be evident and its improvement over the other thing will be immense. It will not have the unfortunate habit of catching fire every once in a while as the present [illegible] and it will be [illegible] Keep down the dust on summer days.

Chicago is already one of the greatest ports of the world and the completion of such a scheme as is proposed for the Chicago river will surely result in every large addition to her commerce, her population and her wealth.

A BOY HERO.

ONE of the most interesting of Decoration day exercises was that at Hagerstown, Maryland, where Secretary Root made the address accepting the statue of "Peace," in the course of his remarks he said:

"Not only the men who fell at Antietam, but the men who survived are to be commemorated by this structure, for they have waked that greater battle of civilization and here today. We see, and without a conspicuous illustration [illegible]

"On the second day of Antietam, when the Federal stationed by the banks of the creek not far to the left of the bridge upon which was centered a fierce terrible fire [illegible] wagon was a commissary sergeant, [illegible] day, and the lines were wavering, remembered that the [illegible] of the regiment would be fainting and weary for the food left in the wagon behind.

"And then the boy William Orders, compelled by [illegible] soldiers duty, hauled his wagon, called for volunteer drivers, and out through the fear to the front, through the shower of shot and shell, and bravely death every instant, brought to the front and to the famishing soldiers of his regiment the reinforcements of food and strength that enabled them to go on with the conflict till the end.

"The regiment was the Twenty-third Ohio, [illegible] Rutherford B. Hayes, [illegible] and the adjutant general of the United States, and upon that field of battle the [illegible] and future president recommended for a commission came, [illegible] for gallantry in action, and the commissary sergeant is William McKinley, the twenty-fourth president of the United States.

"At a time when there is so much that is mercenary in our political affairs and [illegible] more than ever [illegible] to recall such instances as these to keep our patriotism aglow with the [illegible] of the earlier days of the republic and which have not passed away, whatever partisan press and congressional talking machines would have us believe."

THE MILLINERS AND THE BIRD LOVERS.

[illegible] millinery have surrendered to the Audubonites.

The details of the capitulation are briefly summarized as follows:

[illegible] was holding in countries that would make [illegible] for the millinery, if it ever passed. The [illegible] were seeking the passage of the measure known as the Lacey bill. It was so sweeping that it would prohibit the use of bird plumage for merchantile and manufacturing purposes in the United States.

The millinery trade, represented by W. Varney, secretary of the Millinery Protective association, wrote to Southern Deane, the Chicago member of the bird protecting committee of the Audubon [illegible] Union, saying that if the Audubonites would agree [illegible] no more than [illegible] or song birds for hat purposes the Lacey bill [illegible]

For answer to this Mr. Deane said there were other kinds of birds than the insectivorous and song birds that needed to be saved from women's bonnets, and the bird defenders wanted them saved. The result of the correspondence was that the millinery association made a pact with the bird protectors. By the terms of it no bird of all North America is to be dragged into a millinery shop after [illegible] and all the millinery business is represented in this association.

The Audubon folk drove a close bargain with the milliners. They stipulated that while foreign plumages [illegible] should be used, no plumage of any variety found in North America could be dealt in. This was to prevent wicked persons from killing birds in this country and sending them to Europe to [illegible] to be reshipped here.

"By this bargain protection is given to every sort of bird and on this continent. The gay [illegible] pigeons, swans and all are taken in under the treaty.

"One of the features of this truce is the complete prohibition of the buying or selling or having in stock the stylish aigrette, for which women wear [illegible] high-priced heads evidence great admiration. The aigrette is ripped from the backs of birds which are to be found in North America. That means that they are on the forbidden list and cannot be dealt in, no matter where the bird was found from which the [illegible] was torn.

In making the agreement the milliners asked for a liberal time of grace to dispose of the feathers and dead birds they had in stock. Since the manufacturing milliners keep their work one season in advance of the [illegible] trade it will be months yet before the display of birds in millinery windows will begin to decline. It is understood the milliners' association will have no [illegible] to ratify the agreement, but the Audubonites say they have no doubt the agreement will be approved by the association.

The news of the successful ending of the campaign for the protection of the song birds will be received with general satisfaction. It will make comparatively little difference now, whether congress passes the Lacey bill or not. Fashion has established her decree and the birds are safe.

The important state election in Oregon takes place today. The issues are fairly drawn between the two parties and are those which will serve as the basis of the national campaign. Both sides profess to be confident of success, though evidently one must be mistaken, and the result will be watched with interest throughout the country.

For full returns of the result see tomorrow morning's Gazette.

STATE INTERESTS.

The Big Wolf Hunt.

The date for the wolf hunt has been fixed for June 6. The forces to be marshaled at 9 o'clock. The Yuma contingent will gather at Ranchman Moore's (the old Kerr ranch) to be captained by some one to be selected. From there this contingent will move in a southeasterly direction until at intervals with the Wray and Peckley contingent. The latter will rendezvous at the north mill of the K-19 ranch at the same hour, and move in a southwesterly direction until they intersect with the Yuma contingent at the point of the wedge thus formed.—(Yuma Pioneer.

Trinidad News.

There are few, if any cities in the west, of equal size and importance, that have two daily newspapers as good in every respect as Trinidad. That they are able to exist [illegible] by the hardest kind of work by those actively engaged in their publication and practice of the strictest economy, it seems almost impossible to make them a financial success, and the work, it times, is disheartening. That they have been and are of great benefit to the community no one will deny, and as long as they are published will continue to labor in the interest. Should their owners become tired of the struggle and suspend publication a protest long and loud would go up and it is well were necessary to replace them, business men of the city who now spend practically nothing on advertising would go down in their pockets to replace them.—(Trinidad Advertiser-Sentinel.

One of the acts of the next legislature can be easily forecasted and that is the re-establishing of capital punishment. Whether it is right in principle or wrong there is arising a general demand for it, and the measure will be passed.—(Vulcan Times.

[illegible] has been a good rate for the past two weeks, mostly on ore from the Globe. The earnings are very satisfactory and that company is in a position to declare a dividend. The [illegible] proposition and that it can be handled with little effort. Worked on an extensive scale this property would be one of the best producing mines in the state. In connection with the Suffolk-Yellow Girl, Wilmington group and other properties equally as good, the group is indeed a valuable [illegible] property.—(Ophir Mail.

Manitou will present the fairest face to the tourists of 1900 that she has ever shown to visitors. The late snow storms have resulted in an abundance of verdure and the mountains are clothed with greater beauty than ever before.—(Manitou Journal.

Although this is the prime of the year when business with the smelters slacks [illegible] in Pueblo. They are having to run wide open to accommodate the volume of ore that [illegible] for treatment. This is a satisfactory condition that Pueblo will remain lively all summer long.—(Pueblo Indicator.

The production of alfalfa this year promises to exceed that of preceding years. Would it not be a wise thing for the farmers to form an Alfalfa growers' association for the mutual benefit of the members?—(Fowler News.

[illegible] compelling them to be compelled to [illegible] the laws of the state the [illegible] industrials, and when they refuse to comply with the law their charters should be taken away from them. That's the style.—(Denver Examiner.

Steamboat Springs is about to throw off its cross-roads village appearance and incorporate as a full-fledged municipality. It is high time the people [illegible] as their town has a promising future ahead of it.—(Meeker Herald.

Corn, oats, hogs, beef, mutton, eggs, pork, bacon, hams, lard, hides, cotton and hay all advanced in price during April. The farmer is still waiting for some of the general prosperity.—(Animas Leader.

STATE POLITICS.

Why, of course Democrats are good people and if all the energy expended in scrapping each other is turned on the enemy we will sweep their field like a cyclone. A hint to the wise is sufficient.—(Aurora Star.

Governor Thomas went slide on Mr. Maloney's dollar and a-quarter bet and liquidate the legislative indebtedness of Arapahoe county. And Governor Thomas will find that when he swallows Maloney he will have a load on his [illegible] stomach.—(Denver Republican.

[illegible] was a dead rank failure? Not on a single benefit can be pointed out which will now exist that could have been brought about by Bryan's system of doing business.—(Rocky Ford Times.

If the Democratic state convent on that is to assemble in Denver next week is wise it will turn down both the Maloney and Thomas factions, leaving Arapahoe county without representation. It is high time to give this county a rest, and no more opportune than the present [illegible] can be had.—(Cripple Creek Star.

The American voters have always resented the efforts to substitute fiction [illegible] They will not change their [illegible] this year.—(Cripple Creek Star.

People who did not meddle with trusts will soon stand by and see the [illegible] combines smash. They built on foundations of sand and the sand is crumbling. Business built on solid rock of [illegible] need not fear the coming storm.—(Hooper Press.

Once more the senate has passed adversely on the bill to elect United States senators by popular vote. This makes the third time that the bill has been killed in the senate committee and each time it [illegible] from the [illegible] is clearly evident that the senators themselves are the only people opposed to the bill and they will have to bow to the pressure of popular sentiment soon or answer to their constituents when their terms expire.—(Leadville News Reporter.

Colonel Watterson of the Courier-Journal says that his newspaper will support Bryan this year. If the colonel will reproduce arguments that he used against Colonel Bryan in 1896, when he supported Palmer and Buckner, his reputation for consistency and sound business judgment will be fully established.—(Altamont Independent Journal.

THE ONWARD MARCH

Messrs. Edsall, Key and Company Tell of Cripple's Great Strides, in Increased Production and New Ore Bodies Found.

In their weekly market letter dated June 2nd, Messrs. Edsall, Key and company of this city give some very interesting figures and facts in regard to the progress which Cripple Creek is making at the present time. We would add to their remarks about the increase in the production that during almost all the time in the five months the production of which is given in figures, Cripple Creek has been veritably crippled by one thing after another. The high charges for treatment of ores curtailed the shipments for quite a time, which the unusually heavy storms which brought mining practically to a standstill and lastly the serious effects of the fire, the crippling effects of which the camp is just recovering from. The figures for the last five months will not compare with the last five.

Messrs. Edsall, Key and company say:

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 2, 1900.

The market closes today firm but rather inactive, owing in a measure to the interruption of trading by the December day vacation. In the mines list prices have been steady with the exception of Independence T. and M., which took a drop on Friday from 72½ cents to 67½ cents, closing today at 66 cents bid and 69½ cents asked. The trading in this stock was quite heavy, one firm alone selling over 30,000 on Friday. Indications are favorable to a more active market characterized by higher prices. The grounds on which we make this prediction can be readily summarized in the brief statement that in years past the period preceding an unusually active market in the entire list has noted a decided strengthening of values in the higher priced securities. As this is certainly the feature of the present trading we are bound to believe that now is the time to buy.

We are entering on the last month of the first half of the year and the output for June will be watched with interest. The total production for 1899 was $19,733,110, and this year it has been as follows: January, $2,423,500; February, $2,100,000; March, $2,400,000; April, $1,433,00; May, $2,063,[illegible] making a total for the five months of $10,236,[illegible]. These figures are taken from the books of the smelters and mills and can be considered reliable. They represent the present value of the great gold camp, but give no adequate idea of its future probabilities, nay certainties. The number of producing properties are being daily increased in consequence of the opening up of ore bodies heretofore unknown. That you may form some opinion of the rapid strides that are being made in development we mention the following new strikes that have been made in the past two weeks. While many of them are in properties that are well known a number of them are on ground that heretofore has been non-producing.

On the Prince Albert, a vein running from $40 to $60 per ton.

On the Mabel, M., at 110-foot depth a vein 7 feet wide that assays from $30 to $150.

On the Climax No. 1 of the Little Buck company, a vein 2 feet wide that runs from $300 to $500 to the ton.

On the Orisaba, of the El Paso company, a 5-foot vein that will screen $40 to the ton.

On the Dillon, in the 700-foot level, an 8-foot vein has been encountered that will all break pay and enough is are running rich streaks of sylvanite.

On the Vindicator, at the 400-foot level, a 6-foot vein that shows assays ranging from $180 to $600 per ton.

On the Monument, in the 450-foot level, a 6-foot vein that screens $50 to the ton. In this vein are a few streaks of sylvanite.

On the Jeff Davis claim of the Lexington, at 50 feet, the bottom of the shaft is in a body of ore that runs about $200 per ton.

On the National, in the third and fourth levels, a body of ore that runs as high as $2,200 per ton for selected samples, but will pull run at least $50 the width of the vein.

On the Mondoc claim of the Carroney company, the lessees have encountered a vein that runs pay, but the value has not yet been definitely determined.

On the Red Umbrella, ore is being saved from a big basalt dyke that runs $30 to the ton.

The above is not a complete list as many owners are conservative and do all in their power to keep the knowledge of their good fortune from the public until such time as it is demonstrated that their strikes are of lasting character.

With the intrinsic value of the district daily increasing it is only fair to presume that the stocks that represent the properties should correspondingly advance in value and this is another reason why we advise the purchase of Cripple Creek securities at the present time.

EMMA AIMEE CO.'S REPORT

As Read by the Officers of the Company at Their Annual Meeting on Friday Last.

The annual meeting of the Emma Aimee Gold Mining company was held at the office of the secretary's bank block Friday evening, several shares were represented at the meeting in person and by proxy, out of a total of 900,000 issued.

The following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year: Clay H. White, president; H. H. Dorsey, first vice president; E. W. Case, second vice president; C. H. Bush, treasurer; Will S. Mathews, secretary and treasurer.

The following reports were read by the various officers of the company:

Report of Secretary.

To the Shareholders of the Emma Aimee Gold Mining company:

As the stockholders of this company are to be aware but little work done upon the property, about twenty-five to thirty feet of new ground has been added, but the progress on the part of the board of directors, but to the dull season and many depression of the stock market, making it impossible for the company to realize upon its treasury stock without great sacrifice and at a price that was totally inadequate to the value of the company's property.

At the present time the company has on hand in its treasury 50,000 shares of stock and $111.69 in cash, with no debts of any nature whatsoever. Since the incorporation of the company there has been 1,250 feet of shaft work and 50 feet of tunnel and drifts done upon the property, and the total operating expenses of the company during that period has been only seven shares of its treasury stock.

While board of directors are unanimous in the opinion that the time has now arrived when a portion of the treasury stock should be sold, and the proceeds used for developing the property, the latter being in such condition that practical mining men are assured that ore can be opened up and the property made a producer with the outlay of a comparatively small amount of money. Heretofore the work upon the property has been more in the nature of prospecting and has resulted in the opening of a number of veins. By selecting the veins that show the best showing and sinking down thereon, as they naturally run, the board has found in good quantities, and has repeatedly received propositions to bond and lease the property, but with the healthy treasury which the company has it was deemed unwise to bond it when the proceeds from such proposition would be promptly declined. Several options were given, but the various propositions to lease the property have also been made but they were of such a character that [illegible] could not make a good enough financial showing to warrant the board that they would prosecute the work of mining in a systematic manner, and rather than have the property worked in a desultory manner, the board preferred to let it lie idle until such time as the condition of the stock market would warrant the company resuming operations.

On July 12, 1899, W. F. G. Armbruster reported the loss of certificate No. 58 for three thousand shares of the capital stock. The directors instructed the secretary to issue Mr. Armbruster new stock bond to protect the company. The stock was issued in certificate No. 886. Mr. Armbruster asserted that the lost stock was misplaced by him, but on October 3, 1899, certificate No. 58 was presented by W. A. Otis and company for redemption, with the stock properly endorsed. The assistant secretary refused the certificate No. 58, as it had passed through the hands of a number of innocent purchasers, and called upon Mr. Armbruster to make his showing to make good the amount under the bond. This was declined and the matter is now in the hands of the company's attorneys for suit or settlement.

Respectfully submitted,

[illegible] Secretary.

Report of Treasurer.

Report of President.

To the stockholders of the Emma Aimee Gold Mining Co.

Never in the history of the Emma Aimee company has the property of the company had such bright prospects before it. As will be seen by the report of the manager, considerable development work has been done upon the property. Many veins have been opened up from which most excellent showings have been secured by assays, and the property is now in a condition that when the mill is finished it is my opinion that with the showing which the property now makes it will be made a steady producer with the outlay of a reasonable amount of money properly spent.

Having now opened up, believing this, I would recommend that the property be carefully examined for the purpose of carrying out our policy of development, as it is my opinion that a systematic and much larger future work done upon the company's property should be such as would secure greater depth, thus opening up the ore bodies which undoubtedly lie beneath.

The present healthy condition of the company's treasury is the best possible evidence of the economical manner in which the affairs of the company have been administered, that all money which has been spent has been used only in the manner which would secure the best interests of the stockholders. Now that the condition of the stock market is such as to secure for the company a reasonable price for its stock, I believe it would be advisable to dispose of a portion of the treasury stock and resume work as suggested and recommended above.

During my term as an officer of this company I have received the cordial and hearty support of the various members of the board of directors, for the untiring zeal and energy with which they have conducted the affairs of the company.

Respectfully submitted.

H. H. Mayo,
First Vice President.

Report of General Manager.

To the Stockholders of the Emma Aimee Gold Mining Co.

I beg leave to submit the following report of the work done upon the Emma Aimee claim belonging to this company. [illegible] been a total of 832 feet of prospecting work, 300 feet in shafts and winzes and 532 feet in tunnels and drifts. In addition I will deal with the work being done at the north end.

The first shaft from the north end was sunk on a [illegible] vein, which proved to be barren, [illegible] feet, when it was abandoned by the lessees. They crossed a fault at about eighteen feet in depth, but values were small. As the vein pitched to the east the shaft was abandoned and a new one started on the hanging wall of the vein. From the bottom of this shaft another set of leasers drifted about forty feet easterly to a vein that had been opened up on an adjoining property. But it showed no values where encountered although assays of as high as $540 were obtained on this vein in the other property but the ore was not continuous.

At the center of the claim is the discovery hole; a tunnel fifty feet in depth. This tunnel cut a vein about two feet wide but the formation is all broken up and about $6.60 was the best assay, though [illegible] from [illegible] vein near this point [illegible] the hill further gave six ounces gold. This vein has not been uncovered yet.

Near the mouth of this tunnel a vein was opened up by leasers and ore of about $8.80 value was found, but the streak was small.

The company then last year sunk twenty-five feet on this vein but seemed to be just coming into solid formation. This vein is small but shows well and in the bottom of this shaft a streak of fluorine quartz is showing with a foot wall of rhyolite. I consider this a very favorable point at which to do some more work.

The next work consists of a tunnel the entire width of the claim.

This tunnel was started by leasers and driven about 340 feet, when the company did the remainder, over, 140 feet further. The last 100 was in a rhyolite dyke. On the west wall of this dyke some good assays were obtained but the ore appears [illegible]

Drifts were run from three points in this tunnel.

Drift No. 1—In the tunnel a distance of about thirty feet, a vein was encountered and drift No. 1 is to the north some twenty feet, where a winze was put down thirty-five feet.

Some ore was shipped from this point but the company was unable to make it pay. The ore runs about $12 per ton but is quite pockety.

Drift No. 2—In the tunnel about 10 feet another vein was encountered and a drift run northerly about forty feet, where a winze was sunk forty feet. Then a drift forty feet easterly to reach the rhyolite dyke above mentioned. No ore to pay was found though good assays were obtained.

Drift No. 3—On the west side of the rhyolite dyke a drift was run southerly about forty feet. In the extreme southeast corner of the claim a shaft was sunk about thirty-five feet but no ore of pay value was found, although it exposed a nice looking vein.

In general the entire work has been in broken formation and at only one point has solid formation been encountered. I recommend that some point be selected and shaft be sunk into solid formation on some one of the veins exposed.

Drifts can then be run and I do not hesitate to predict that at least four of the veins opened will produce pay ore if followed to solid formation.

Several small holes [illegible] the work mentioned have been sunk but have not encountered anything of note.

Very respectfully submitted this first day of June, 1900.

E. W. Case,
General Manager.

NEW COMPANY IN YANKEE

Special to the Gazette:

Yankee, Colo., June 2.—Since putting in the new compressor in the new '94 tunnel last fall it has been found to be too small and a 25-drill compressor is soon to be put up, and from this pipes will be extended to different mines in the camp and air supplied for drills at a nominal cost. The new type of drill known as the pneumatic drill will be used, two or three having been already put in, their consumption of air in only one-tenth of an ordinary hoisting.

Following the incorporation of the '94 Tunnel company for 2,000,000 shares, is that of the Yankee Mining, Milling and Tunneling company, lately formed by H. L. Seaman of Denver, and the following properties of Yankee have been turned over to the new company: The Manhattan tunnel site, St. Louis lode and St. Louis mill site, the Connecticut, Vermont, Maine, H. L. S., Bruno, Faust, Jersey, Atlantic City, Baltimore, New York, Charleston and Georgia lodes.

This company is incorporated for 2,000,000 shares at $1 each. The group of claims can be worked through the Manhattan tunnel and it is the purpose of Mr. Seaman to put up the tunnel pushed. Mr. Seaman is a well-known mining man both here and at Cripple Creek, has much money here and intends to make much more soon. No one doubts his financial backing, and the fact that he is coming here means much for the camp of Yankee.

The Last Man mine is again sinking its shaft with three shifts of 10 men. The ore is showing up splendidly in the bottom. The shaft will be continued to the 200-foot point and then drifting commenced.

DELANY & DELANY'S MARKET LETTER

June 2, 1900.

The market for the past week has experienced no particular change either in prices, declines or volume of business. The expected summer break has not appeared in any particular form, although a few of the shares are suffering with that tired feeling.

Large transactions in mining property seem to be still in order and the reported sale of the "Cresson" company's properties, lying on Bull hill, for over two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars is simply one of the many yet to transpire.

This company owns almost 50 acres of ground most admirably located and capitalized for one million shares; this will give the stockholders a dividend of twenty cents a share, and as some of the stock has been selling for about fifteen cents it is plain to be seen that the buyers up. It is much sought after for the reason of the location alone, but the acreage makes it a sure thing and a good investment.

We are sorry to see Independence T. & M. declining below seventy, and the reason we are unable to give, but it looks to us as a first class purchase. We do not believe there is anything very serious behind the fall of these shares.

We are still urging the purchase of cheap stocks for a hold and do not believe it good policy to put off too long. Keystone, Kimberly, Bob Lee, Gold Sovereign, Kaffirs, Kentucky Bell, Pharmacist, Gold Dollar and Gold Coin are most attractive investments on the existing quotations, and Gortner, Work and Gardner, Jr. Gold Mines, Limited, are bound to amount to much and the turn of the market will see these stocks among the active ones and giving their holders nice profits.

Beacon hill and Squaw mountain will yet spring a sensation most disappointing to those who have no interests there.

Yesterday in the Local Pulpits

A SERMON ON OBEDIENCE

Dr W H W Boyle of the First Presbyterian church has returned to the city and occupied the pulpit in his church yesterday morning and evening Both congregations were very large and Dr Boyle was cordially greeted by his people

His morning sermon was on the subject of Obedience and was in part as follows

John 13 13 Ye call me master and Lord and ye say well for so I am

That I like to be the proof text of Christian obedience The titles here accorded by the Saviour are interchangeably used The term master is made in scripture to indicate a variety of application the manifold duties of christ in relation to his followers master as teacher which suggests learning master as guide which suggests following master as owner which suggests obligation master as overseer or autocrat which suggests submission And whether the application the word is descriptive implied the richly expressive and helpful word obedience Christian obedience in its philosophy its pattern and its practice is then the theme for our Sabbath's study

1—So far as its philosophy is concerned its leading principle is accepted truth To choose a master is forthwith, to submit our will to his command our mind to his way of thinking our entire powers to his plan of work Take my yoke upon you and learn of me is a precept from Jesus and the acceptance of this yoke of divine commandment has involved in it both privilege and limitation We can afford to be just as proud in our philosophy of religion as he was but not one line broader He that followeth me is His promise, shall not walk in darkness

At the very outset then accepted truth must have its ground work in accepted righteousness for to use the old theological term find its vindication in acceptual term find its vindication in righteousness He shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free is the magna charta of the believers liberty under the reign of grace and it was spoken by Him who declared of Himself I am the truth

Nor is Christian philosophy less copious for its determination of truth than it is for its determination of Christian obedience as is glorious in its character as its sliver but the duty which it imposes is not easy of performance It was written with respect to the conditions of mankind as they are There are found those who say that it makes no difference what one believes so long as he lives in accordance with it a great deal of respect among men I once heard of a man whose humble it was to avoid every obstruction put his way, because he believed that his body was a glass case which might be broken He was sincere but he was insane I know a woman who kept out medical skill because she believed that it was a delusion and her child died of malignant diphtheria She must have been sincere but she was sinful

The path of Christian obedience for everyone leads straight to the hill of difficulty and the victory comes with faith

To accept a philosophy of life is one thing to live it is another

The pattern of our obedience is Jesus Christ It is better who does it than he who says it and we should follow in his steps This is the spirit of the disciple in the parable He is the type for encouragement and reproof for warning and inspiration

There is no place in all this world with a deeper mystery in it than Gethsemane yet it was there the master suffered learned to speak unto the Father resigned to the will of the Father and became perfect through suffering

This is the brightest experience which the history of Christian obedience records the triumph through trial is faith's greatest glory

THE SUPREMACY OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Rev M D Ormes in his morning sermon at the Second Congregational church took for text from Matthew 5 20 For I say unto you that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven

What is righteousness Is it self-righteousness that the Pharisees had with their phylacteries and their broad fringes Is it the righteousness of the scribes who were learned in the law and who sought to entangle Jesus in his talk Is it the righteousness of the rich young ruler who had kept the commandments from his youth up Is it the righteousness of the publican who stood afar off and would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven but smote upon his breast saying God be merciful to me a sinner Is it the righteousness of the Christian disciple who walks humbly with his God and daily does justly and loves mercy

Does it mean self-righteousness that the world is filled with Is it the righteousness of the christian disciple who is conscious of his own shortcomings and who is ever striving after a higher life

No it is the righteousness of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the mind of God It is the righteousness which is in the mind of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the life of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the character of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the spirit of Jesus Christ It is the righteousness which is in the merit of His perfect life It is the righteousness which is in the atoning sacrifice of His perfect death It is the righteousness which is in the resurrection of Jesus Christ before which the world was not sufficient to stand and which the world was not sufficient to keep for it crucified Him It was the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ which led Him to say Father forgive them for they know not what they do It was the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ which led Him to say Father into thy hands I commend my spirit It was the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ which led Him to say It is finished It was the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ which led Him to say Father I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world

It is the righteousness which is in the heart of Jesus Christ which is imputed unto us by faith in the merit of His perfect life and perfect sacrifice before God The world is not to see us as we are but as we appear in the righteousness of Jesus Christ

Is it the righteousness

The Sparkle of Life

Is generated by Nervous Energy

You can't have good health and weak nerves at the same time. Your general health is good or bad, according to the condition of your nerves. No theory in this; it is simply founded upon the old law of cause and effect.

Nerve force gives buoyancy, vim and power to both body and brain.

Be convinced of the above facts by trying a box of Palmo Tablets. The greatest nerve remedy of the age. They cure debility.
